Name:

What would you say are some of my strengths?

1. Has a strong sense of duty, and will carry out responsibilities regardless of his like or dislike for the task.
2. Strict to observe rules, not bend them, whether traffic or commandments/direction of our church leaders.
3. Has the ability to organize well, and to prepare for a task thoroughly.
4. Excellent study habits-planning ahead, pacing.
5. Personal religious practices. Scripture Study, Personal Prayer
6. Great ability to keep up relationships electronically. Keeps up with friends (old and young), and replies reflectively to their needs. Listens, counsels. Communicates with siblings and parents. Thinks of others.
7. Recognizes situations where he may have been wrong, or right-but over-reacted, and takes steps to correct/apologize. This shows unusual maturity.
8. Good sense of humor and wit.
9. God given intelligence.
10. Above average understanding of the conventions of the English language; which extends to other languages. Fluent in French, knows some Spanish and Latin.
11. Participates in all service opportunities he can. One church leader commented on how he saw Samuel at every service project that year.
12. Good home teacher. Makes appointments, plans lessons-reads the 1st presidency message in the Ensign.
13. Is very careful of the media he listens to, reads, or watches-that it is uplifting.

What would you say are some of my weaknesses?

1. Sometimes really stubborn.
2. Hesitant to try unfamiliar things.
3. Doesn't talk much. This does not give as positive first impression as he could, which could limit his opportunities. Until people get to know him, or communicate electronically they don't know where they stand with him, or all he has to offer.
4. Does not date. I don't know if this is positive or negative.
5. Needs to practice/take initiative to open doors for young ladies and older people more. In not wanting to be noticed too much recedes too much sometimes. This also leads to not as positive first impression.
6. Won't hold the guinea pig.

I can't think of much else.

You really have few weaknesses compared to your strengths, which can compensate for them.

Love, Mom

Name:

What would you say are some of my strengths?

Spiritual obedience and diligence, dependability, consideration for others, strong and broad academic skills, loyalty to family and friends, quick to repent and say "I'm sorry," loving and kind, willing to help others.

What would you say are some of my weaknesses?

Strong verbal and writing skills but sometimes lacking in detail and expression of personal feelings; need to continually work to broaden interests and depth of knowledge in areas that may not be of immediate interest; need to broaden social experience—something that will come naturally as you participate in wholesome activities that are offered you.
